About Embarcadero Embarcadero was founded in 1991 as a multi-language software development company based in Scotts Valley, California. Through the years, the company has expanded to provide a wide range of products and services including business intelligence, mobile solutions, and software development tools. The company produces high quality applications for a variety of platforms ranging from handheld devices to enterprise servers. It has been credited as being one of the most productive software companies in the world for their ability to develop whole solutions from scratch using modern technologies. The company's products are primarily focused on database, digital media, and middleware development. Embarcadero is one of the few major software companies that has survived the economic downturn of 2008 without having to lay off any employees. The credit for this goes to their ability to diversify their technology portfolio and offer a variety of products to different markets. Embarcadero's primary product, Delphi, is an object-oriented programming language that can compile PHP scripts, HTML5 apps, C# code, etc. It is one of the oldest programming languages still in use today. It was originally produced by Borland but was eventually sold to Embarcadero after Borland's bankruptcy in 2009. Embarcadero has continued to support the product and has even brought it to new platforms to make it even more versatile. Embarcadero Delphi is developed for Windows & Mac OS X, Android, WatchOS & iOS (iPhone, iPad). Embarcadero RAD Studio XE4 (formerly RAD Studio XE3) is the latest version of the RAD Studio suite. The most notable feature in this release is a revamped visual design tool for Delphi, C++/WinRT and C++/CX using their cross-platform solution. It also adds a host of new compilers with better C++11 support and a new IDE featuring dockable windows and a floating application dock. Most of the features and tools of Delphi and C++Builder XE8 are ported over to this release. Embarcadero RAD Studio XE7 (formerly RAD Studio XE6) is the latest version of the RAD Studio suite. It boasts new compiler technology as well as a new cross-platform visual design tool, as well as parsing engine for Microsoft SQL Server and enhanced deployment support. Embarcadero has also introduced a couple of new compilers: faster JavaScript, faster HTML5 and faster Android.
